Castlemaine Doctor Awarded for her Contribution to Rural Communities

Castlemaine General Practitioner Dr Rebecca Dale was among the Award recipients of the Victorian Rural Doctors' Awards. The Awards recognise doctors and their spouses who have worked for 40 years or more in rural Victoria and/or have made an outstanding contribution to their rural community.

The Awards were developed by the Rural Workforce Agency, Victoria (RWAV), the statewide organisation responsible for the recruitment and ongoing support of doctors in rural Victoria. The Awards were also supported by the Australian College of Rural and Remote Medicine (ACRRM), the Rural Doctors Association of Victoria (RDAV) and Rural Medical Family Network (RMFN).

Dr Dale's contribution to medicine began in 1982 when she started in General Practice in Castlemaine. She is a Visiting Medical Officer at Mt Alexander Hospital and has been involved in obstetrics since 1982.

As a rural doctor, she has delivered babies, watched them grow to adults and have children of their own, which Dr Dale considers to be a professional highlight. She also enjoys watching younger doctors evolve and develop their skills, which she has been able to facilitate through her role in teaching registrars, a position she has held for the past 13 years. "It is hard work but definitely worth the effort," she said.

The Awards were presented by Senator Judith Troeth, who noted that the celebration was particularly appropriate given current circumstances. "At a time where there is a critical shortage of General Practitioners in rural Victoria, there is no doubt that GPs in rural areas play a pivotal role in ensuring the health and well-being of people within their communities," she said.

"The work of the rural General Practitioner often goes unheralded. They work long and irregular hours with little relief and support. Nevertheless, the esteem in which doctors are held by the rural community is a testament to the work that they do."

In a message to the award recipients, Victorian Premier Steve Bracks expressed his appreciation for "the invaluable service and contribution that rural doctors have made, and will continue to make, to rural Victoria."

“Rural doctor services are an integral part of health services in rural Victoria, serving to not only treat those who are ill, but also playing a vital role in promoting good health and supporting community growth and development,” Mr Bracks said.

About RWAV

RWAV was established in 1998 to overcome the shortage of rural doctors and improve access to medical services for rural Victorians. RWAV's recruitment programs and ongoing support services have been fundamental to increasing rural GP numbers in Victoria.

Today, RWAV is addressing workforce shortages in rural and regional towns. Some of its key priorities include the provision of support services for rural doctors and their families, professional development programs, locum support, marketing of rural general practice, recruitment of rural doctors including specialist outreach services, workforce planning and research to inform government policy.

Further information on RWAV is available on the website at www.rwav.com.au
